ABOUT IAPR

The International Association for Pattern Recognition (IAPR) is an international association of non-profit, scientific or professional organizations (being national, multi-national, or international in scope) concerned with pattern recognition, computer vision, and image processing in a broad sense. Normally, only one organization is admitted from any one country, and individuals interested in taking part in IAPR's activities may do so by joining their national organization.

IAPR came into official existence in January 1978. Following the Second International Conference on Pattern Recognition in 1974 in Copenhagen, the Standing Committee approved the proposal to establish a permanent international professional organization; two years later, the Constitution was approved in Coronado and Executive Officers were elected.

The aims of IAPR are to promote pattern recognition and the allied branches of engineering together with the related arts and sciences, to advance international co-operation in the field of interest to stimulate research, development, and the application of pattern recognition in science and human activity, to further the dissemination and exchange of information on pattern recognition in the broad sense, and to encourage education in all aspects of the field of interest. In achieving these aims, IAPR fulfills the need for better world-wide communication and increases understanding among practitioners of all nations in the role that machine intelligence can play in accelerating technical and scientific progress.

Areas of pattern recognition currently represented by technical committees are: Statistical Pattern Recognition, Structural and Syntactical Pattern Recognition, Neural Networks and Computational Intelligence, Benchmarking and Software, Special Hardware and Software Environments, Remote Sensing and Mapping, Machine Vision Applications, Biomedical Applications, Graphics Recognition, Reading Systems, Multimedia and Visual Information Systems, Pattern Recognition in Astronomy and Astrophysics, Signal Analysis for Machine Intelligence, Graph Based Representations, Algebraic and Discrete Mathematical Techniques, Machine Learning and Data Mining, Discrete Geometry, Cultural Heritage Applications, and Bioinformatics.

Today, the responsibility for the day-to-day running of IAPR is delegated to an Executive Committee, assisted by Standing and ad hoc committees. The authority of the Association is vested in the Governing Board, composed of representatives of the member organizations, who decide all important matters such as general policy, the programme of activities, admissions, elections, and budget.

ABOUT SABANCI UNIVERSITY

Under the leading direction of one of Turkey's leading family run foundations, Sabancı Foundation, Sabancı Group (www.sabanci.com) established Sabancı University in July 1994. More than fifty academicians from 22 different countries, students and individuals from the private sector participated in the Search Conference of August 1995. This conference was followed by design committees, which worked under the guidance of a "Student Tendency Suvey" and other academic program design activities. The groundbreaking ceremony for Sabancı University campus took place on July 31, 1997. The University began its first academic year on October 20, 1999.

Sabancı University is a private, independent young university with a state of the art campus spread over 1,260,000 m² and located 40 km from Istanbul's city center.

The University aspires to develop competent and confident individuals, capable of independent and critical reflection, who possess a strong sense of social responsibility. This mission is reflected throughout the entire University, from its interdisciplinary academic programs, its state-of-the-art technology and infrastructure and its research and development projects in industry. Students at Sabancı University have the privilege and freedom to design their own undergraduate programs by choosing courses among a wide range of course pools and with the support of the University Counseling system.

At Sabancı University, academic activities operate within the framework of three programs: the Faculty of Engineering and Natural Sciences (FENS), the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences (FASS) and the Faculty of Management (FMAN). The undergraduate degree programs are built around a blend of disciplines, which leverage new, scientific developments and equip students with a wide diversity of mental tools and skills needed to deal with the increasingly complex, interactive and fast-flowing environment that characterizes today's world. Graduate programs, on the other hand, are designed to prepare students for career-specific fields and/or research.

The University functions in a bilingual mode, relying on English as its primary language of instruction, but using Turkish whenever necessary, for example, for courses and readings on Turkish Literature or Ottoman History. Students admitted to the undergraduate degree programs take an in-house English Language Assessment Examination (ELAE) to determine their proficiency in English. For those who need it, the requisite level of English is attained through participation in the School of Languages (SL) Program. In strengthening the skills needed to flourish in an exacting academic environment, this exemplary Program goes beyond the scope of the traditional preparatory year. Mastery of English is indispensable in advancing the job opportunities for Sabancı University graduates in both Turkish and world markets.

Through the implementation of its inventive faculty programs and the establishment of close links with the State, business community, NGOs and other institutions of higher learning, Sabancı University has fostered an environment conducive to research. It has the distinction of being the first university in Turkey accepted for membership in the European Foundation for Quality Management (EFQM).

The University is an autonomous center of learning and research devoted to examining, producing and disseminating knowledge for the public good. The University's obligation to society and to the world community is to ensure scientific integrity and the highest scholarly quality of education. To fulfill this obligation, the Board of Trustees, faculty and administration of Sabancı University take joint responsibility for assuring the fullest protection of freedom of inquiry, thought, and expression.

The majority of full-time faculty members have received their Ph.D. degrees overseas and a large number of them have joined Sabancı University from careers outside Turkey in higher education, research institutions, international NGOs and industry.

The University's distinguished international faculty comes from a broad spectrum of the nations of the world, including Australia, Austria, Bosnia, Bulgaria, Canada, England, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Luxemburg, Poland, Russia, Sweden, and the United States of America.

CUSTOMS CLEARANCE

AYKOR LOGISTICS has been appointed as the official freight forwarders for ECE 2009. Turkish customs formalities are different from other European countries and it takes 2-3 days for clearing the goods, if all documents are in order. Therefore we strongly recommend you to contact AYKOR LOGISTICS directly to be advised about the best solution for your shipment.

Deliveries

Please be advised that all deliveries must go through the official handler Aykor Logistics. You will not be able to send deliveries directly to the venue. Do not handcarry exhibit goods into Turkey, there is a great chance that this will cause problems getting in or out of the country. For full shipping instructions please contact with Mr. Mert Aykor from Aykor Logistics. Because of strict customs regulations in Turkey, exhibitors are urged to observe all slipping, packing and labelling instructions with the greatest care. When in doubt, please do contact Aykor Logistics.
